IDEAL JOBS

The ideal jobs for everyone on the team are all varying with Jonathon wanting to become a System Administrator, Khiem's ideal job being a Data Governance Manager, Alan as a Video Game Developer for IOS and Android, and finally Yonas as a Mobile App Developer.

The obvious similarity that a comparison can be made is that Alan's and Yonas' ideal jobs both require developing and creating a mobile app however Alan requires making a mobile game application. There is a likeness between the two jobs.

Khiem and Jonathon's jobs are also similar in a way as these jobs require the individuals in these positions to be able to display strong leadership skills as well as being able to deal with the pressure of being placed in a role where they must exercise their authority in a way that is beneficial to their organization or company.

The main difference between each member are the skills required for each job as each job listed requires different understandings of various programming systems and skill that are unique to the specific jobs that each team member is most passionate for. Such as Alan's job requiring knowledge with the Unity software or Jonathon's job being able to problem solve and find innovative solutions to issues.

It is lucid to see that there are points of comparability between each of our ideal jobs as well as vastly contrasting points, but all these jobs come under the 'umbrella' topic of Technology within our world and within our society.
