GROUP REFLECTION

As a group, we felt that we were all able to individually complete our own assigned parts and none of us created any issues within the group regarding unfinished work or not showing up to team meetings. We all made sure that each member was on top of their work and the main thing that we were very proud of is how much we were able to joke around with each other while also being able to help each other out and getting our work completed. We also wanted to highlight how our team members did not really get into any arguments or issues with workload between others which was commendable from everyone in the group.

What we think might needs improvement is the communication between the group members, as sometimes there would be some miscommunications between members such as mix ups with who oversaw what work and which documents uploaded was who's, but we understand that those are mistakes that will always occur naturally and is something that is not a massive issue. One other point that we observed during our team meetings was sometimes other members would talk over each other and we would waste bits of time having to ask what other members were saying, granted this was not a major issue as well due to the fact that we were able to finish our parts at the right time and were not stressing about if we had enough time to complete our tasks.

Something that was very surprising within our group was how helpful and caring each member was towards each other and the fact that each member was always willing to help out with anyone who was stuck on something or needed more clarification on a specific section. Another additional thing that we learned that we felt was rather important and needed to be mentioned was the fact that nobody failed to not show up to team meetings as we know how busy some of our members were and the fact that they continually showed up was very admirable of them.

One thing that we were able to learn about groups during this group assignment is how significant and very paramount it is that for a successful team to operate, each team member has to be able to put in their best effort and have to be able to show up to team meetings as well as make sure that each member is keeping up with the work.
